“Play Ball” Given by Radio Production Class

"Play Ball" was the latest set-piece presented by the Radio Production class. The Girls Glee Club got everybody in a baseball mood by singing “Take Me Out to the Ball Game.”

Actors who took part in the play were Willard Bean, William Bean, Elbie Dolly, Dolly Mussen, Bob Riddle, and Jim Panabok. The story was based on the novel of the same name by James Panabok of which father (Bob Riddle) was the leading character, and entering professional baseball. The father was finally convinced by the manager of the minor league team in his own city that baseball was an honorable profession.

The next play to be presented by the Radio Production class is entitled "Submerge" and will be given in the next future.

Memorial Day: Next Thursday

By Elva Rodgers

At the close of the Civil War, an idea came into being that has since grown into a holiday celebrated in many parts of the United States. The United States "Celebrated" is hardly the word; a better one would be "owed to the men who fell for the day is Memorial Day.

From a tiny seed of an idea sowed by a few Southern women, that of having a day set aside for the men who gave their lives in the Civil War, has taken on increasing significance. This year, as May 30 draws near, we are faced with a situation more terrible than ever before the full meaning of Memorial Day.

The resting-place of this war's dead is not limited to the boundaries of the United States, but in the Civil War, or a few sections of Europe as World War I; rather the small white cross stands in endless rows over a greater part of Europe, there an idea came into being that has since grown into a holiday celebrated in many parts of the world. Memorial Day will have meanings that are not all that it is supposed to mean. The thought will be, "These dead shall not have died in vain."

One of the men who make up South Brooklyn, the book you'll be proud to own. Another outstanding feature is the map which is contained in the book. Only one other book of its kind was ever published, and that is in the country, that being in New York.

After six months of painstaking research and personal interviews to present this handy little volume that gives a bird's eye view of South Brooklyn, both past and present. It was Mr. Van Kannel, the printing teacher, who received the idea of printing the book in old style type.

Cleaning women had to use extra loops around second floor lockers Friday evening after Helena's gals celebrated her selection as track queen and the men learned like wise.

In collaboration with Mr. Hartrell, Mr. Billy is considering writing a book on "How Not to Write a Descriptive Paragraph."

Rumors have it that an ex-local organization is installing another group of "Juniors"—boys will be boys.

Topping last week's social tid bits was the announcement of the Flossie Braliano—Anthony Zang engagement.

There was a wee bit of confusion, but Marie Martin is the S.F. Friendship's new wheel—congrats.

Informations:
Social chairman Lenore Podwil, Lois Nelson, and Alice Romanchuk, after an evening on "De Browner," spent the A.M. hobnobbing with the F.D. and stringing fast tires. They'll teach you to go slow.
