Student Council Visits Lincoln

During the month of February, three members of the Rhodes Student Council - David Green, Frank Kuhnert, and Betty McKean - paid a visit to Lincoln High School to see how school conditions there compare to those of Rhodes. They found that the arithmetic is smaller than that of Rhodes, but that the half guardians are much more strict. They discovered also that Rhodes has a more pleasant atmosphere, but that the teachers seemed to be more friendly at Lincoln than at Rhodes. These three previous visits to the visiting committee of the Student Council, members visited Rhodes to look for their best. They had also the advantage of being students of Rhodes.

On March 12, three West High students visited Rhodes to compare our school conditions with their own. They looked over the school and attended the Student Council meeting. They were very interested in the projects of the Student Council. However, they found Rhodes were very attractive and seemed to have a smile for everyone.

Money, clothing, and food are the things that the French Club is sending to the French girl that they have "given." This year, in memory of the deaths of the Rhodes students in the Thursday afternoon is the calendar of this class for their first spring activity.

Tomorrow, at the T-Y-Teven meeting, a question will be presented for the students and anyone else who is interested. The question is: "Who conserved four men from Case School of Applied Science who will represent the world?" This question will be answered by a committee of four teachers and four students. The ERC is not the only event in the world, but it is an international event. All interested should attend the meeting which is to be held in room 190.

The members of the panel, representing four different religions and nationalities, were Miss Mabel Mary Manwaring, 22, a Negro; Miss Marion Taylor, 22, a Jewess; Miss Hareng, 22, a Protestant; and Miss Frances Fey, 19, a Chinese. Two members of the panel, Miss Marita Enos, 22, a Muslim American; and Miss Frances Feay, 22, a Catholic, were representing the Chinese and the Jewish, respectively.

Well-trained as well as well-dressed, those young women presented their own points of view and the views of their own racial or religious group. The members of this panel have been traveling throughout the world with Dr. G. Byron Dans, professor of Anthropology of the University of Southern California, as mediator. When a State Champ Isn’t a State Champ

A mythical celluloid high school basketball champion was crowned last week-end at Columbus. And, as long as the teams from Cleveland State high schools are barred from competition in the annual state-wide tourney, it will remain mythical. Due to a non-southern Born and Ohio Cleveland is forbidden to enter the state eliminations at the risk of losing State status.

Last season Deshutte’s powerful five was told by the Senate athletic board that it could enter this season’s run for the state crown only if it forfeited all its Senate games and thus became inactive in consideration of state finalists. This rule has stood since the days it was necessary to play two games in one day during the tournament.

Now with the elimination schedule set up as it is, teams play no more than two or three games a week, therefore, the Senate restriction could be relaxed.

Another reason put forth by the backers of the rule is that it interferes with the season’s championship races. But by speeding up the tourney, which had been held during the Senate races could be decided a lot faster and if necessary the champions play-off in the end was to be kept in as part of the tournament.

Coach for Teams

For all its supposed evils, it seems to require no ill effects from the Senate standpoint. As recently as Sudjkf it’s a thrilling experience for student body and team alike to play in such a championship league.

In a poll of Senate coaches, conducted by the Cleveland News, none of them were really to be gained having their386 scores entered in the postseason tournament, Rhodes’ mentor, Warren Vansevenstrael, was quoted on the affirmative side. But since it’s principally going to be the Senate’s own policy, it will take their “yes”' failure to change the rule.

The Blues and Whistles also regained the track rack (Black Track meet), and mile relay (Mayer, Barnes, Voltaire, Holman) trophies. The two mile relay and the 440 yard dash also had something to show for their efforts besides the user.

Eight Rhodians Participate in World Affairs Conference at WRU

More than five thousand high school students have seen the United Nations in action in the past three months. From the opening day of the General Assembly's eight-week session last October 2 until the end of 1965, high school visitors filled hall after hall as they attended all educational groups. Even when no seats were available at meetings, hundreds of high school students visited United Nations headquarters at Lake Success, N. Y., to see the building, and how for groups of such outstanding personalities as Mrs. Previdi, Mr. Malhotra, and Mrs. Rosen- vel. Although a majority of the schools groups have come from the New York City area, many students have traveled from New Jersey, Con- necticut, Pennsylvania, Massachu- sets, Washington, D. C., and many requests have been received even from abroad as the children of other na- tions also wish to watch history in making.

Why are the students so eager to visit ? They give many answers: "To get a story for my school paper," "To see what the headlines are all about," "To test out my French," or "To find out why people are arguing for a debate." One lore student, thinking the future job of the United Nations, the next session of the General Assembly will be a major event in the students' lives.
